Testing

Nobody

This is a little test of melody mode. Here you listen to a melody created from this text. Duration values depend on the number of letters in each word. The first pitch is choosen randomly from a set. The algorithm computes the Levenshtein's distance between each pair of consecutive words to decide the intervals. The direction depends on the difference between the numbers of letters of the words.